Fulcrum IT Completes Acquisition of Corbin Company Expanding into Healthcare and HR Services

MANASSAS, VA, October 17, 2012—Fulcrum IT today announced that it has acquired the Corbin Company, a provider of technology engineering services including cyber security and sensor technology support. Corbin complements and expands Fulcrum IT's offerings to include Healthcare and human resource (HR) services including specialized change management, quality assurance, and strategic planning. The acquisition adds to Fulcrum's current portfolio of key clients including the Department of Homeland Security (DHS), the Uniformed Services University of the Health Sciences (USUHS) and the U.S. Army's Research, Development and Engineering Command (RDECOM) Communications- Electronics Research, Development and Engineering Center's (CERDEC).

Corbin adds additional mission critical solutions such as current broad sensor technology to support the CERDEC's Night Vision and Electronic Sensors Directorate (NVESD). The acquisition enables Fulcrum IT to deliver sensor technology support through Corbin's prime position on the Warrior Enabling Broad Sensor Services (WEBS) for the NVESD contract, an indefinite delivery/indefinite quantity contract vehicle with a $1.8 billion ceiling and performance period through 2017. The U.S. Army RDECOM is the Army's go-to organization for the superior scientific and engineering expertise that defines the space between the state of the art and the art of the possible and delivers innovative technology solutions that ensure the United States maintains global battlefield dominance.

Fulcrum IT CEO Jeff Handy said, "The additional offerings in Healthcare and HR broaden our potential client base into two very important markets. Additionally, the engineering services such as those provided to the Army's Research, Development and Engineering Command bolster our existing innovative technology solutions that can deliver break-through technologies for the next generation warfighter."

Corbin Company CEO Mark Robin added, “Fulcrum’s portfolio of service offerings and clients complements Corbin’s suite of professional services in the best possible way. Fulcrum’s focus on supporting employees and customers matches Corbin’s culture nicely.”
